HTA join forces with Jerrabomberra businesses

We were approached by Darren Manton Manager Jerrabomberra Community Bank in the hope we would consider including the businesses located at the Jerrabomberra Village Centre.

There are approximately 30 businesses that work out of the Village. They are primarily retail with some professional services.

I see their inclusion as a positive step, one that we had considered may happen in the future as the model we have developed continued to spread its influence.

Given you can see Jerrabomberra from most parts of Hume, their location seems to suggest being included as a logical progression. They suffer similar issues to Hume particularly their isolation. Basically people go to Jerrabomberra because they have to, like Hume, there is limited through traffic.

Darren has been canvassing businesses at both shopping centres to gauge their interest. To date the response has been positive with 3 businesses signing up.

These businesses include:

- Pizza Capers Gourmet Kitchen
- One Agency Real Estate Agents, and
- Jerrabomberra Community Bank

We intend to continue the push within Hume. The interest shown by those businesses at Jerrabomberra also suggests that by spreading the word about Hume Traders through Jerrabomberra should in the long term reap rewards of greater numbers and greater diversity of membership for HTA.

Several businesses from Jerrabomberra attended our last meeting at HDM Metal. I would like to welcome them all and hope they get a lot out of their involvement.

Last meeting was held at HDM Metal, and I think I speak for all that attended, that there was some amazing machinery on show. Many thanks to Rodney for the invite and the wonderful spread he put on. (See Bio below)

We are continuing to grow but this cannot be left to chance. I ask that all members continue to actively push for new members, whether that is from Hume, Jerrabomberra or other regional centres.

HDM Metal is a specialised fabrication business that has been operating in Hume since it's commencement in 2004.

HDM Metal provides services to a wide range of customers across the region incorporating architectural metalwork to the construction industry, street furniture, sheet metal products and much more.

HDM Metal works through the complete fabrication and installation process with our own team of Industrial Designers creating detailed 3D drawings of all the products we create.

HDM metal has a large factory with suitably trained, qualified and experienced tradespeople. The Factory consists of very modern CNC plant, including laser cutter, turret punch and pressbrake all of which enables us to fabricate items quickly, accurately and efficiently.

HDM Metal prides itself on being a professional, safe and reliable company that produces work of a high standard.

Recently HDM Metal with has been involved with projects such as the Poppy at the Shrine of Remembrance, the facades on building such as The Little National Hotel and Garangula Art Gallery, the Spiral stair at One Canberra Avenue and the Metalwork at Kingston Foreshore.

Did you know...

The area surrounding the Queanbeyan district was once called the Limestone Plains and as a free settler and merchant, Robert Campbell set up a farming property called Duntroon. John Palmer, who was the brother-in-law of Robert Campbell established a holding near the new settlement that was later called Queanbeyan, he called his holding Jerrabomberra.

Jerrabomberra is derived from the local Aboriginal place name meaning 'boy frightened by storm'. Palmer arrived with the First Fleet as a purser of Governor Philip's flagship Sirius and was appointed Commissary of the colony in 1791.

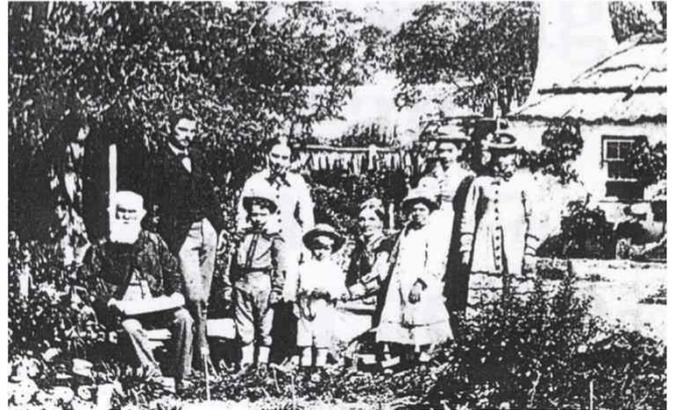

Palmer's new property, Jerrabomberra, lay about 3.2 km from where the township of Queanbeyan was developing on the opposite side of Mount Jerrabomberra. This new landholding of Palmer's was exchanged for a property at Portland Head on the Hawkesbury River in 1827 – Palmer was seeking a more suitable area on which to run his stock. Palmer stated "...It is my desire to take land about nine miles south west of that located to Mr Campbell at Limestone Plains in the county of Antrim" (Antrim was a tentative name before Murray was proclaimed).

In September 1828 Palmer moved 2000 head of sheep to Jerrabomberra and in 1832 he added an additional 640 acres at a place then called Quinbeane. In the census of 1828, it was revealed that Palmer had five convict shepherds, a superintendent (Duncan Cameron) and a stock master (Barney Pills) living on site. Palmer died in 1833 and left his estate to his eldest son George who resided at Ginninderra.

As he was busy with his own property, Jerrabomberra was managed by a younger son, Pemberton Campbell Palmer until his death in 1885. Pemberton Palmer married Octavia Stoll in Sydney in 1855 and they lived at Jerrabomberra raising a family of 11 children there.

Palmer was an active and well known member of the Queanbeyan Community. He was an elected member of The Queanbeyan Cricket Club, The Race Club, and Church Society yet still became bankrupt in 1866. Palmer was a signatory to the Municipal Petition in 1884, he employed many people on his estate and permitted horse racing to be held on his land. Palmer was also in front of the local court on many occasions, being charged with assault, selling illegal spirits and charging money without cause.

Pemberton Palmer died in August 1885, and was the first burial in the Tharwa Rd cemetery on the 18 August 1885 – the site of the current Lawn Cemetery. ...to be continued.
